- Cultivating Faith: Faith is not blind acceptance; it's a belief in something greater than ourselves, a belief that supports us even in the darkest moments. This involves prayer, meditation, or simply connecting with your spiritual beliefs in a way that feels authentic.
- Practicing Acceptance: This involves accepting the present moment, even if it's painful or challenging. It doesn't mean condoning injustice or suffering, but rather choosing to respond with peace instead of being consumed by negativity. Spiritual warfare is a concept frequently connected to this, suggesting a constant battle between good and evil, where faith provides strength.
